

HYPERALLERGIC

Sensitive to Art & its Discontents

ARTICLES

A Long Short List of Gallery Shows to See This Fall

by Jillian Steinhauer on September 13, 2013

Brian Adam Douglas: How to Disappear Completely at Andrew Edlin Gallery

Brian Adam Douglas, "A Sort of Homecoming" (2011), cut paper on birch panel with UVA varnish, 36 x 71 in (via edlingallery.com)

If you're not familiar with the name Brian Adam Douglas, you might know him as his street artist alter ego, Elbow Toe. Andrew Edlin has mounted Douglas's first solo exhibition in New York, bringing the artist's layered, pulsing images into a white-walled space. The new works focus on life in the wake of global-warming-induced disasters, giving them further resonance in Chelsea.

134 Tenth Avenue, Chelsea

Through Oct. 26